NOTE ON THE FOX NEGATIVE PARTICLE OF THE CONJUNCTIVE MODE

FROM the position of pwāwi, the Fox negative particle of the conjunctive mode, directly after ā- and wī-, one would suspect that it should be classed as an initial stem. That such is the case can be shown by Kickapoo. I quote from Dr Jones' Texts: ā'paitcāhiāwātci, THEY WERE NOT ABLE TO KILL THEM, which in Fox theoretically should be ā'pwāwītāhiāwātci. I do not know if the exact expression occurs in Fox. But it is important to note that the idea of killing is derived solely from the context: tcāhi is an incorporated particle, -h- the instrumental, ā—āwātci the modal and pronominal elements. Hence unless pwāwi be an initial stem we have a verbal compound without any. In this connection I may add that āgwi, the Fox negative particle of the indicative, occurs somewhere in Jones' Texts in a verbal compound as an initial stem 'deny.' Unfortunately the reference is misplaced.
